BottleDrop customers helping support clean, renewable energy

Donation to Corvallis Sustainability Coalition will support solar panel energy transition

Clackamas, Ore. -- The Oregon Beverage Recycling Cooperative (OBRC), parent organization to BottleDrop, announced a $2,500 donation to the Corvallis Sustainability Coalition, a Corvallis, Ore. based nonprofit focused on sustainability issues at the local level and beyond. The donation, generated through BottleDrop's Containers for Change program, will be used by the nonprofit to support their Solarize Corvallis project, a grassroots initiative to increase solar panels as much as possible throughout the community by 2025.

"The Corvallis Sustainability Coalition is proof that concerned neighbors can work together to improve their community, and the world," said Eric Chambers, OBRC's external relations director. "With BottleDrop being part of the sustainability infrastructure in Corvallis, the Coalition is a natural partner for us."

BottleDrop's Containers for Change program provides Oregonians with an easy way to donate funds from their bottles and cans to excellent nonprofits operating in communities around the state. BottleDrop customers can participate by simply leaving their bag tag stickers off of their Green Bags, and dropping them off at any BottleDrop facility, like the Redemption Center in Corvallis, Ore.

"Solarize Corvallis is helping our community accelerate the much needed transition to renewable energy," explained Annette Mills, facilitator/director of the Corvallis Sustainability Coalition. "We are extremely grateful to OBRC for their generous support – and to everyone who supports our efforts through the BottleDrop program."
